BROADVIEW.

Mrs. Crawford has moved into town with her family for the winter.

Rev. Mr. Benzie has had a fight with la grippe. We are glad to see that he has come off victorious.

Miss Wallace has returned from Regina. She left la grippe there, but it caught her here. She is now quite well again.

Mrs. Nicholl, at the manse is a good deal better. She is able to be up a little every day. Her illness
has been long and severe.

Our postmaster has got an addition to his family in the shape of a young postmistress. Both mother and child are doing as well as can be expected. I think that is the right phrase to use.

MOOSOMIN.

Mrs. and Miss Edge have arrived in town from county Grey, Ont.

Mr. Robert Inglis is dead. The bereaved family have the sympathy of the whole community.

Rev. W. L. Rutledge, of Grace church, Winnipeg, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church here
Sunday morning and evening.

The collegiate department to the public school promises to be a success under the management of Mr. Smith, who for a long time has been connected with the Kincardine
High School.

Monday evening a social was held in the church. Refreshments were served from six to eight in the basement. After tea those present gathered in the body of the church, where addresses and a musical programme were provided.
Rev. Mr. Rutledge spoke a considerable length on church finances with very visible effect. They succeeded in getting $2215 subscribed to help pay off the church's indebtedness.

SALTCOATS.

Mr. Reaman, M. L. A., has been addressing his constituents in the near vicinity of Saltcoats during the past week.

The officers and members of the Stirling Agricultural Society met in the Henderson block on Thursday
last to consider reports, elect officers for 1890 and transact other business. The reports presented showed the society to be in a most healthy financial condition, so healthy that it is deemed advisable by some to erect buildings and prepare grounds.
It was decided that the society send
Mr. A. E. Beake as immigrant agent to Ontario from this district.

Mr. Beake's long residence and extensive knowledge of the great advantages of the Northwest in general, and this district in particular, will make him a valuable agent. The following officers were appointed:
President, J. S. Cramer; 1st vice-president, Thomas Carleton; 2nd vice-president, Mr. Dingwald; secretary-treasurer, Thos. McNutt;
directors, Messrs. Rattle, Eskin,
Blake, Bolton, Patrick, Thompson,
A. E. and E. W. Beake.

A new postoffice will be opened immediately at Carlton, with D. Stivens as postmaster. The office will be called "Carlton."

A WINTER'S TALE.

Last winter my little girl caught a severe cold which lasted all winter. I treated her with everyting I could get hold of to no avail.

Finally I got B. B. B. (Bardox Blood Bitter) from my druggist. I gave her two drs. which improved her and in a week she was entirely cured by its use.

REGINA.

On Wednesday, 12th prox.,
the annual calico ball of the Regina brass band will take place. This event is invariably one to be remembered. Invitations are already issued.

The curling rink is now in order,
but the "stones" have not yet arrived.
However, they are on the way, and soon the boms will be in demand,
and we will listen to the ever-recurring "soop'er up."

Mr. D. L. Scott, Q. C., arrived from a couple of months trip,
last Friday morning, looking many months younger and several pounds
heavier as the result of the vacation.

Mrs. Nicholl, at the manse is a good deal better. She is able to be
up a little every day. Her illness
has been long and severe.

The Northwest Mounted Police
gave a grand instrumental concert
at the barracks Wednesday evening
last, at which there was a gratifying turnout. Interspersed between the elections by the band, all of which were worthy of mention,
were piano recitals, violin, cornet
and flute solos, and banjo duets.
The whole entertainment was a treat, and it is to be hoped that these exclusively instrumental performances will not be the last.

At a meeting of the Battleford column of the Northwest field force held in Toronto on the 17th, it was decided that a reunion of the force should be held on March 28. A large number of letters were received from members living out of the city, signifying their intention of being present. It is expected that members of the old brigade now living in the United States and Northwest Territories will be represented.

A list of the standing committees of the town council for 1890 has been drafted. If the draft is accepted at the next meeting, Coun. Robert Martin will again be financier-in-chief,
Coun. Andre Martin, the old timer, who had a year off in '89, will resume his position as head of the board of works; Coun. Ferguson will have charge of the fire and water department; Coun. Sweet will take care of the town hall and printing; Coun. Moody will look after the parks and the license business, and Coun. Reilly will be chairman of the health and relief committee.

The Qu'Appelle Dramatic Club,
which appeared at the Regina town hall Friday evening, drew a large and fashionable house and the auditors were all highly delighted with the performance. The play was "Our Boys," an English comedy.
The personification was perfect,
each member appearing specially adapted for the character represented.
The Qu'Appelle and Regina
cricket clubs together had the management, and the receipts are to be divided between these organizations.

making quite a crust on the snow.

Frank Oliver arrived from a visit to Ontario on Monday's stage.

The cold weather of last week
moderated on Sunday, and Wednesday
day there was quite a thaw.

A building at Whitefish lake belonging to P. Pruden of Lac la Biche, was burned on New Year's Day with the contents, a small treading outfit and fifty dollars in cash
as well.

The Red Deer settlement has had a substantial increase of population
by immigration during the past season. Many of the settlers are direct from England and Scotland,
and are of a very desirable class.

Arrangements are being made by the department of interior to replace the present bridge at St. Albert, during the present winter, with a new bridge at a cost of $8,000. The management of the contract has been placed in the hands of Thos.
Anderson, crown timber agent,
assisted by His Lordship Bishop Grandin of St. Albert. Messrs. H.
W. McKinney and E. Brosseau will have the contract. The work will be of great advantage to the St.
Albert people.

Montreal Gazette. When a man marries, in accordance with customary usage, he promises to be faithful to one wife till death do them part. But the Mormon married his second wife with the consent of the first one, and therefore breaks no pledge. Such is the plea that Mr. Maitland Steinhause has signified his intention of urging upon the courts. The question has arisen
whether, in taking this ground,
the legislator has the support of the Mormon colonists; whether, in fact the latter got admission to Alberta on false pretences, and intended all along to set up a little Utah in the Northwest. The suspicion can hardly be avoided that,
in pretending to have abandoned
the most repulsive feature of their creed and practice, they simply tricked their Canadian hosts, and that Mr. Steinhause's announcement is the inauguration of a propaganda which will be prosecuted with vigor when the other colonists reach their destination in the spring.

OUR GOVERNMENT.

As we intimated in our last issue the Northwest Ordinance establishing the Tweed-Neff Advisory Council has been vetoed, and the way cleared for the Lieutenant-Governor to appoint a Council under the old Act. But such a Council has not yet been appointed and it looks very much as if His Honor will have to go begging to get one formed. It is whispered about that Dr. Brett is being persuaded to re-form his Board, with perhaps one change in the personnel. Should he consent they would at last have ten months plain sailing, but when the House met again they might look for trouble. It is, however, hoped that the Dominion Parliament will at the present session so amend the Northwest Act as to get over the difficulty now existing. It remains to be seen what concessions the Dominion Government will make, and whether the people of the Northwest will have to begin thus early to agitate for their rights, and force them item by item from the Federal authorities. Though the majority of the people of the Territories are not in favor of a full-fledged provincial government, still they are almost unanimous in the demand that the position taken by Lieutenant-Governor in 1883 and continued till the session of the Legislature last fall, shall be maintained. His Honor then conceded all the responsibility desired by the people and their representatives for some time to come. Circumstances that have arisen since the last session have caused many to conclude that at the session of 1883 the Lieutenant-Governor was acting on his own responsibility, but that during last session he was acting under instructions from Ottawa. There are indications that such is the case, and many are feeling irritated to think that Dominion interference has spoiled what at the outset was accepted as satisfactory. Late developments have caused a strong feeling of suspicion and jealousy of Federal interference that will not be easily allayed.

Advices from Ottawa state that the Mounted Police have complete proof that the Mormons are practicing polygamy in these Territories. The Government should spare no means to nip in the bud the licentious practices of those lawless gentiles. They should be given to understand with the utmost abruptness the full meaning of British law enforced in British fashion.

PRE-EMPTIONS.

Ottawa correspondence Empire: The fact appears to have escaped public attention that, commencing with the first January inst., pre-emptions in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories are no longer obtainable. The Dominion Lands Act of 1886, clause 46, provided that the privilege of pre-emption in connection with homestead entries should be discontinued from and after January 1, 1890. The proportion of settlers who have availed themselves of the pre-emption privilege has been gradually declining for the last five years. The conviction has been growing among settlers that 160 acres is as large an acre as the average farmer can profitably work. From 1880 to 1884 inclusive, an average of about three fourths of the homestead settlers entered for pre-emptions; in 1885 and 1886 the average fell to a little under and a little over one-half for the respective years; in 1887 the proportion was only a little over one-fourth, while in 1888 it declined to almost one-sixth. During the year just closed, probably in view of the fact that settlers knew the privilege of obtaining pre-emptions was about to cease, there was a slight increase in the number, a little less than one-third, or 36 per cent of the settlers taking up pre-emptions.

The conclusions to be drawn from the above would favor the abolition of pre-emptions. The fact is the reverse of the statement made above that "160 acres is as large an acre as the average farmer can profitably work." The falling off in the entry of pre-emptions is not altogether attributable to a matter of choice as the Empire would indicate, but more frequently is a question of necessity. The general rule is where a homesteader can get a pre-emption on the same section he enters for it, but frequently he cannot do so. The above extract would create the impression that the right to pre-emptions is no longer necessary or advisable. It is of the utmost importance in the interest of the settlement of the Northwest that the pre-emption privilege should be renewed at the present session of the Dominion Parliament. If the settler does not want a pre-emption he need not enter for it, but the fact that many cannot get it to suit them or do not desire it, should not annul the privilege. We will return to this subject again.

The question has been asked of us why Mr. R. D. D. Strong, of this town, was not among the names recently gazetted as Queen's Counsel. Coupled with the question is the remark that Mr. Strong is possessed of abilities superior to the latest elevations to the silk among the Territorial bar. The absence of his name could not imply want of merit, as Mr. Strong has acted for a considerable time as Crown Prosecutor with credit both to himself and the Government. It was admitted on every hand that he conducted the Mcleish murder case with marked ability, and has shown superior legal acumen in all other cases entrusted to him. It is not therefore a question of ability that bars the silk from Mr. Strong, but one of time. We are informed that his name was recommended for the honor, but it was found he had not practiced a sufficient length of time at the Canadian bar. It is the rule of the Dominion not to confer the silk upon any one who has not practiced the legal profession in Canada for at least ten years. This bars Mr. Strong who has not been ten years in Canada. His many years practice at the English bar does not count in Canada.

It is time subscriptions to THE PROGRESS were being paid up.

Three issues of the Canadian Nation are before us. It has been established to propagate the principles of Canada's New Party. The publishers have chosen a grand and appropriate name under which to advocate the grand principles embodied in the platform of the New Party. The editorial columns exhibit a high order of literary talent, and the contributions and selections are of superior excellence. The logical arguments presented on the topics discussed, cannot fail to be convincing to the fair minded reader. It is an eight-page, forty-eight column paper, well printed on good paper. Subscription $2.00 a year. Give it a trial, if only for three months. Orders may be left at this office.

ANOTHER NORTH-WEST CRISIS.

The Ottawa Government, perhaps with good reason, has disallowed an ordinance of the North-West Assembly authorizing two of the members of that body to act as an Advisory Committee with the Lieutenant-Governor. According to the North-West Act, the Governor can select four members to perform, under him, such of the duties of a Cabinet as pertain to the expenditures. At the last session of the Assembly a difficulty arose between the popular body and the Governor, touching the nature of the outlays over which the Advisory Board has control, and is consequently responsible to the Legislature. The Governor maintained that the Board and the House could deal only with the local revenues. The other revenues those coming from the Dominion—were, he held, subject to his sole disposition. The House, on the other hand, regarded the Dominion grant as of the nature of a subsidy, and demanded the right to handle it. Two Administrations, or Advisory Boards, fell in the attempt to sustain the Governor's view in the face of the opposition of the Assembly. Finally, Mr. Royal was unable to select a Cabinet from among the members. There being no Advisory Board, the House decided to vote no supplies. In order, however, to prevent financial disorder the members passed a short ordinance declaring that the Governor, though no supply had been granted, might make such expenditures as were necessary, and as were approved by two members of the Assembly in whom the majority had confidence. It is this relieving ordinance that is disallowed. The measure seems to have set aside the constitution of the Territories as established by Parliament, in that it reduced the Advisory Board four in number to two, and in that it allowed the Legislature, instead of the Governor, to nominate the members. At the same time it was an ordinance calculated, if allowed to stand, to tide over a crisis and to prevent disorder. The disallowance of the law throws governmental business in the West to some extent into confusion. But of course Mr. Royal will not be embarrassed by it as regards the outlays from the revenue derived from Ottawa. He claims to have automatic control of this not inconsiderable amount. Parliament will have to deal without delay with the difficulty. If it should concur to the Assembly the right it claims, and against the exercise of which there will be no argument, trouble will pass over.—Mail.

NEVER LOST A PASSENGER.

This unique record of railway life is owned by the Canadian Pacific Company, which has a monopoly thereof. During all the years from the beginning of this enormous institution, and extending over its thousands of miles of varied track it has never lost the life of a single passenger. Not only railway men but general travellers will quite appreciate the safeguards and conditions necessary for such a history. In winter and summer, on the mountain and prairie, over bridge and "hill," through crowded towns and open country, by burning forests, and through flooded valleys, their scores of daily trains have kept their rapid way, carrying millions of passengers, picking them up at a thousand different stations, and landing them at as many destinations, without the loss of one. The record is marvellous when one considers the host of people, the aged and the infant, those quite new to railway travel, and the regular tourist, with foreigners of every people. Looking at the transfers at railway junctions, and to and from steamships, and trains at both ocean shores, to the sharp time kept at the crowded stations in the larger cities served by this company, one is compelled to ask, how is it done? —Manitoba Colonist.

Mr. ROYAL'S INTERVIEWS.

It is rather amusing to note how Mr. Royal, in all the interviews he had in the east, ignored the position he took upon the appointment of his first advisory council in 1888. Through these interviews, he has attempted to convey the impression that he has not changed from his original position, but that what the Assembly demanded was something new. It is a matter of congratulation that Mr. Royal did not succeed in convincing the country of the rectitude of his proceeding. The eastern press have at length arrived at a correct understanding of the matter. The Assembly took up no new position. They simply demanded that Mr. Royal should go on as he began. This he refused to do. He receded from the position which he voluntarily took up in 1888, and hence the trouble.—McLeod Gazette.

THE NORTHWEST ASSEMBLY.

The members of the Northwest Legislative Assembly were probably prepared for the disallowance of their ordinance, appointing two of their number to advise with the Lieutenant-Governor pending the settlement of the dispute between His Honor and that body. The dispute itself possesses the singular merit of being right, view it from which side we will. In claiming to exercise control over the expenditure of the Federal grant, the Governor is merely standing on his rights as secured to him by the Northwest Territories Act. In claiming that such control ought to be shared by the Legislative Assembly, the members are holding out for a power they should unquestionably possess and without even the shadow of their constitutional government would be a farce. The Assembly behaved with proper spirit and dignity in refusing in any manner to countenance the assumption of any authority so opposed to the traditions of a free representative body, as was involved in the appropriation of the supplies without the consent of the Assembly. The members did right in refusing confidence to an Advisory Board that would not maintain the absolute inviolability of this principle; and when in the last hours of the session they passed the ordinance appointing a board of two, it was more for the purpose of showing their reluctance to block the course of government than, we imagine, in any expectation of overruling the difficulty. Meantime the Governor did not feel called upon to admit that he was bound by the ordinance, claiming that the powers delegated to him by the Dominion Parliament exceeded any authority that might be exercised by the Assembly. In this he was no doubt within his legal rights. How far it was prudent to press those rights it is now, at any rate, profitless to discuss. The Assembly had not the law at its back, and that will be reward enough until such times as the conditions are altered.—Free Press.

A PERSONAL INVESTIGATION.

We doubt if more lawless language was ever before used by a Canadian Premier than that attributed to Mr. Mercier with regard to the Equal Rights meetings. "The French-Canadians," he says "have remained calm, although they have only to say the word and the Equal Rightists would have been driven out at every meeting they held." What does this mean? Does it mean that Mr. Mercier regards himself as very forbearing because he did not pack the Equal Rights meetings with mobs? If it does not mean that, what does it mean? Mr. Mercier had better get a new handle of the good old sort into his coat of arms and hang one over his desk in the Legislature as the emblem of his policy, but he had better not bring his axe handle into use.—Witness.

"In one county we were beaten by equal rights," says Mr. Mercier, "and in another we elected a Cabinet Minister because he was opposed by them." This is the verdict of our astute Premier. Not only was the Brome election controlled by the Equal Rights movement, though it did not take any part in the election or endorse any candidate, but in St. Lawrence it was only by the union of both parties that the Equal Rights movement was defeated. "We elected a Cabinet Minister" means that Mr. Colby was dependent on the help of the Liberals for his election. Let me one after this say that Equal Rights is not the ruling power in the land. Mr. Mercier assures that the Liberals will continue to help the Conservatives against this movement, in other words the jockey will continue to hunt with the hounds and give the hounds all the prey. We doubt it.—Witness.

WINE AND BEER NONSENSE.

While an occasional fossil Halifax Alderman or some one else who knows little, and has thought less, on the temperance question still talks about the introduction of light French wine and beer, as a temperance measure the real facts are that in France where such wines are found in their best, and in Germany where such beers are made in there best the governments have both become alarmed at the evils of drunkenness to the nation. One of the most prominent Germans of this country has just declared that Germany has more to dread from beer than from the armies of France.

The French government, seeing something must be done, is going to put an increased tax upon strong liquors, to prevent, if it can in that way, the rising tide of their consumption in the country. It is said that the present Ministry is very much in earnest in this matter, and is grappling with the question to the best of its ability. What a piece of nonsense for representative men to actually suggest their more free introduction here just at the time when countries that have long tried them are struggling to get free from their bondage!—Canadian Voice.

Complaints in the Government Printing House Strike.

OTTAWA, Jan. 13.—The composers in the government printing bureau, who have been demanding an increase of wages from $11 to $12 per week, failed to get a satisfactory reply from the superintendent Saturday morning, and refused to go to work. Under instructions from Ald. Farrel, president of the local union, however, they went to work again, ending the result of an interview with Sir John Macdonald.

Look Out for This Fraud.

INGERSOLL, Jan. 13.—Some time ago a stranger called at the residence of George Hartwell D. McCarty of this place, and asked to leave an organ there until the following morning. McCarty, who is a member of the music club, accepted the machine. On Friday morning an agent of the Woodstock branch of the Molson's Bank presented a note for the price of the organ to Mr. McCarty, and demanded payment, or, in default, a return of the organ. Mr. McCarty at once declared no one to be a forger. The man who left the organ was an agent of Carter, the music dealer who failed in Woodstock a short time ago, and he played the same trick on several Ingersollites.

ROY BERRY;

THE FRUITS OF INTEMPERANCE.

BY GEO. W. WOOLSEY.

[Copyright, 1889, by the Author.]

"You don't say! Could it be possible that they were her brothers?"

"That is just what I was coming to. After the wreck was cleared away the dead were all recognized and claimed by their friends except two young men, whom the trainmen said had traveled together and carried a large sum of good deal of baggage and had a large amount of money in their possession, and in looking through their wallets with the hope of finding something by which they might be identified the only thing found was the picture of what was supposed to be a family group."

"How many persons were there represented in the picture?"

"Five. An elderly lady and gentleman, and two boys, almost grown to manhood, and one girl."

"Did you see the picture?"

"Yes. While attending the inquest I saw it, and it had been impressed ever since looking upon the face of the sick girl that there is a most remarkable resemblance."

"Do you know what became of the picture?"

"Yes. The picture was taken with other persons belonging to the dead, met to the general office of the railroad and there safely stored away."

"And do you suppose there would now be any chance of getting the picture?"

"Yes. I had it in my pocket and as he took it from his pocket and handed it to Mrs. Goodwin, he continued: 'Surely this is the picture of her face, though she looks to be several years older now.'

Mrs. Goodwin looked long and earnestly at the picture, and a sad expression came over her face, and her eyes filled with tears as she answered her husband's anxious look.

"Yes, it is her picture, and those are her brothers. She is still very well, high-spirited, and her own life to find."

"You had! too bad! She has found them. But alas! they are in the grave!"

"She must not know the worst now. The shock would be too great for her now until she is stronger."

"Three months later Mrs. Goodwin and Hettie were out walking together as they had been accustomed to ever since Hettie had sufficiently recovered to be out again, when their conversation turned from surrounding scenes to events of the past.

"Hettie, do you still have hope of finding your brothers?" asked Mrs. Goodwin.

"Not alive," calmly answered Hettie.

"Why not alive?"

"A few nights ago I dreamed that I had found George and Harry, and that they were both dead. The dream was too real not to be true, and I shall find it so sometime."

"And would you be surprised to find them alive?"

"Yes; for I know them now only as the dead, and I am resigned to my fate."

Taking the picture from her pocket Mrs. Goodwin handed it to her without a word.

Hettie looked at the picture a few moments in silence, and her eyes filled with tears as she exclaimed, "Mother!" And then, growing calm, she turned her attention to Mrs. Goodwin.

She turned her attention to Mrs. Goodwin.

She told her all that she had learned from her husband; how he had gotten the picture, and all she knew of the affair.

Hettie appeared calm and perfectly resigned; since of late her troubles had come so unexpected and so severe that she had given up to almost everything that might occur.

She was assisted by Mr. Goodwin in finding the railroad officials and from them learned the sad particulars of George and Harry's terrible death. She got considerable money left by them, and over their graves she erected a handsome monument upon which, as a warning to others, she had these words engraved in Latin letters:

"Be wary of strong drink!"

Hettie remained several weeks longer with Mrs. Goodwin, to whom she had become so greatly attached that it was hard to part with her forever. But she longed to be at her old home again, and when her arrangements were about completed to leave for home she wrote a brief note to her husband, and posted it to her friend, Ola.

DEAR OLA.—When I left you I promised to write when I had found George and Harry. I have, after a long time, found them, and I am now preparing to return to my old home in Kentucky. Many thanks for all you have done for me. I wish to tell you, I feel a horror for the like voyage, but of course it is fully to think of danger. Sincerely yours,

ROY BERRY.

In all the twelve months Hettie had been in Canada she had never heard from Roy. Her letters had all been returned and marked "not found." She did not know that Roy had left the north and returned to his southern home, and when her letters were sent back she was grieved lest he still she had hope of one day finding him, and this hope was her comfort, both sore and steadfast, and she lived on day by day with a confidence that at some time being re-united with him.

She hastily completed her arrangements and at the appointed time bade her friends and protectors long farewell, and left them with sorrowful hearts as she journeyed homeward.

CHAPTER XIV.—ROY AT HOME.

Roy made all possible haste and arrived home on the second day after he received the telegram. As he took a seat in a chair of his home and looked musing upon the dead scenes of his boyhood days his heart was filled with joy, but when the thought came into his mind like a flash that he might not know his mother alive, joy for the present turned to sorrow, and he approached the house in a little, sad, heavy heart. But when when inside the house he was welcomed by his mother's smile, and all his sorrow was changed to a smile.

Mrs. Berry lingered between life and death for many weeks, but by good medical attention and the best of nursing she was again restored to her usual health, and was once more happy with her beloved family.

During all this time Roy had tried in vain to learn something of the whereabouts of his brothers, but had been unable to do so, and he had given up the search.

Mr. Roy advertised for her in a number of Canada newspapers, and still no tidings of her name.

He decided to wait a little while with the hope that she might become disengaged in what he considered a useless search for a brother or two, or until he might hear something more. As night came on and the stars of the lake and ocean shone brightly, he lay down in his bed, and soon fell asleep.

That night he had a dream that he had promised to return and claim her when he had provided for her a comfortable home. That promise he had kept sacred; he had been successful beyond his most sanguine expectations; but alas! for his fondest hope, the idol of his life, had flown like an uncaged dove, and he was left to mourn for the living, yet dead to him, forever, so far as he then knew.

Thus his thoughts wandered from one event to another until a late hour in the night, when he awoke, and, seated in the direction of the lake, he sprang to his feet and looked anxiously out upon the smooth surface of the water. In the dim moonlight he thought that he could see an object of some kind floating along slowly toward the shore. It was afar off and in the faint light Roy could not discern whether it was a living object or not. As he was gazing intently and was about to decide that it was a human being, a cloud obscured the moon and darkness closed around him for a few moments, and then the bright sun shone again. The floating object came nearer and nearer. Roy watched in breathless silence, and his heart almost ceased its pulsation as his eye caught the weak but distinct words, which, when connected, form the following sentence:

"My God! have thou forsaken me?"

"Who can it be?" was Roy's first thought, as he sprang to his feet and ran back to the hotel to give the alarm and call for help, a woman's voice, soft and low, floated over the surface of the water in familiar strains as she feebly sang—

"Rock on the bosom of the deep, Lord, liveth there. Thee we ever keep."

The voice died away before the last lines of the song were reached.

Roy again turned to go, but was this time arrested by the same voice, but in feeble tones, calling his own name, and then he became desperate. The voice was again lost and everything was as silent as the grave, but still the floating object with its human freight was slowly coming nearer the shore, and Roy could now plainly see that it was the form of a woman.

A small boat lay anchored by the shore a few rods away. Roy ran with all possible haste and loosened the boat from its mooring, leaped into it and rowed with all his power toward the floating craft, but before he reached it another cloud obscured the moon, and he was compelled to anchor for a few minutes. While thus surrounded with darkness his ear again caught the same sweet voice in song, only a few rods away.

"Gather me away to hear my lauds."

Roy urged his boat forward, and a few strokes of the oars brought him alongside a woman lying upon a piece of broken timber. He leaned over her and saw that she was too weak to as much as move her hand. He lifted her head upon his arm and as he did so their eyes met and in the same breath, they exclaimed—

"Hettie!"

"Roy!"

She turned her attention to Mrs. Goodwin.

She told her all that she had learned from her husband; how he had gotten the picture, and all she knew of the affair.

way to meet them and welcome them home again, and there was joy and sorrow mingled together in each heart. Joy for the safe return of Hettie, who was the pride of all her young friends, of whom she had many, as well as all the elder persons within the boundary of her almost unlimited acquaintance, and sorrow for the loss of so many young lives of once noble youth, in whom she had loved and respected in their youth while they were innocent and free from the accursed monster evil.

Uncle Moss was so greatly overjoyed that for a time he forgot his rheumatism and old age and fairly danced for joy.

"For the good Lawd's sake, Miss Hettie, what at you wan' or black moun'ing fur?" when he saw her in full mourning.

Hettie explained to him all about George and Harry's death, and this was the first intimation Moss had of the fate of his young friends, and as Hettie related to him all that she thought best for him to know, his poor sympathetic heart ran over with honest sorrow and he wept like a child.

CHAPTER XV.—HAPPINESS AT LAST.

For the past few years Roy had scarcely lived the real, but merely visited the faith with which his hope was fixed for the near future. He started out for himself very early in life, but not until he had carefully considered what he was doing and sincerely obeyed the scriptural injunction: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you."

He now, more than ever before, saw the wisdom of his course, and he most graciously thanked his heavenly father for protection through his boyhood years while he was thrown among those who were tempted and yielded—and were lost!

He too would have fallen had he not listened to the whisperings of his own conscience and left the distillery when he did.

His success financially was phenomenal, and only an occasional one with his good fortune in that respect.

Hettie could attribute the cause of so much sorrow allotted to her to nothing she had done herself. Perhaps it was the bitter experience of a young life to sweeten middle-age. Be that as it may, she had drunk the cup to its dregs.

About that time a powerful temperance revival was in progress in that part of the state, and public meetings were being held in school houses, churches, and at private houses.

Roy took great interest in these meetings, and contributed largely to their success. He was an old distillery building still standing on the land that he had recently purchased, he suggested that it should be converted into a temperance tabernacle. Accordingly the place was comfortably fitted up with a seating capacity for a large audience and a platform for the orators.

Persons came from a long distance to these meetings and great good was accomplished.

The tabernacle was also made a place for the various religious denominations,

A postoffice was opened at the half way house on January 1st, called Strathcarol, with Mr. T. W. Carroll as postmaster.

A congregational meeting will be held at the Presbyterian church on Monday next at 10:30 o'clock. Every member and adherent is requested to be present.

By special request "Our Boys" will be repeated by the Qu'Appelle Amateur Dramatic Club in the Government Hall on the 6th February at 20 o'clock, for the benefit of Mrs. Guerin, who has always proved herself not only willing to help all denominations, but able to amuse all alike both grave or gay.

The annual meeting of the Qu'Appelle branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society will be held in the Methodist church on Friday, the 30th inst., at 20 o'clock. Addresses will be delivered by Rev. J. M. Harrison, the agent of the society, and others. The public should not fail to attend as Mr. Harrison is a very able speaker a collection will be taken up in aid of the society's funds.

The Qu'Appelle Amateur Dramatic Society visited Regina on Friday and Saturday last, and performed Byron's Comedy "Our Boys" at the Town Hall and the Barracks to very large and highly appreciative audiences. Nothing could exceed the warmth of their reception, and the opinion expressed generally in the capital was that the representation had never been excelled by any other theatrical performances in the town, professional or otherwise. The eldridge says "practise makes perfect" and certainly the play can even more smoothly and harmoniously than in its performance at Qu'Appelle. The same company have by special request, arranged to give a repetition of the play in this town on Thursday the 6th February for the benefit of Mrs. Guerin, when no opportunity should be lost of being present by those who were unfortunate enough to miss its first performance.

The Philharmonic Minstrels gave their entertainment at Indian Head on Friday evening last, and at Fort Qu'Appelle on Tuesday evening. At both places there was a large attendance, but at the Fort the audience was by far the more appreciative. At the Head the jokes of the boys fell upon dull ears. It has been said of a certain nationality that it requires a surgical operation to enable them to see a joke, and it may be that that nationality predominates at the Head. The day after the entertainment there a Qu'Appelle gentleman asked a resident of Indian Head what he thought of the minstrels. He replied saying that jealousy existed between the two towns and that the Indian Head people did not like the Qu'Appelle boys to go down there and make jokes at their expense. In strong contrast with the reception of the Minstrels at the Head, was the manner in which the people of Fort Qu'Appelle treated them. They received them heartily and gave them a most appreciative audience. Their quick perception almost anticipated the jokes, and the whole entertainment was a continuous round of merriment and roar of laughter. The boys are delighted with their reception at the Fort.

On Friday morning last two troupes left this town to entertain the people of adjoining towns. "Our Boys" company went to Regina and the minstrels went to Indian Head. There are ten characters in the former and the latter requires twelve persons to complete its personnel.

Mr. B. B. Bradley's numerous friends will congratulate him on his recent good fortune. A few weeks ago the news came that his brother in Australia had died leaving an estate worth upwards of a million pounds sterling ($55,000,000). The deceased had never married, and left his property to his brothers and sisters. Mr. Bradley has just received word that the estate is to be divided between the nine surviving brothers and sisters, and his share will thus be upwards of half a million dollars.

icipality, owing to the inability of settlers to meet such payment, owing to failure of the crops this year, caused by the great drought.

Moved by J. R. Brown, seconded by John R. Bunn, that in the opinion of this council, the demand lately made by the Government, requiring the prompt payment for pre-emption, bears extremely heavy upon the struggling settlers. Therefore be it resolved, that this council earnestly request that a further extension of time be given to the actual homesteading farmers in this municipality for the said payments, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Honorable E. Dewdney, member for Eastern Assiniboia.

On motion the Council adjourned.
